Sophia Academy | Summer Program 2011

The ability to communicate well, using a variety of approaches, is the key to success! Improved reading, writing and math skills are essential to effective communication which results in greater self-confidence and self-esteem.

Sophia Academy has created an innovative, interactive and exciting summer experience, iAm, to help students maintain and continue academic growth. Research-proven strategies including the Orton Gillingham approach, coupled with multi-sensory and experiential instruction will increase the participants' knowledge, application and effectiveness of communication.

iAm instructors are highly skilled and experienced teachers committed to the development of the student. Small group instruction will promote the learning process, engaging the learner and ensuring success.

iAm is open to rising 1st through 5th graders and will feature an innovative summer program.

iAm... a reader! iAm participants will improve reading skills by using common communication tools in an innovative and multi-sensory way. The Orton-Gillingham approach will provide the foundation of reading instruction. iAm participants will gain understanding of the communication of math through songs, motion, talking calculators and other computer applications.

iAm... a writer! iAm participants will sharpen their written curriculum skills using a variety of interactive tools that connect them with the world. Math will be infused into the communication to increase understanding of real life applications.

iAm... successful! iAm participants will implement newly learned skills and increase their understanding and commitment to reading, writing and math. Sophia Academy summer reading, math, drama, public speaking and physical education will be included. These processes will be enhanced through dynamic and forward-thinking activities such as creating a YouTube video, messaging in multiple ways and programming communication.
